

Personal Information

Full name	Donhee Ham
Current position	Gordon McKay Professor
Organization	Applied Physics and Electrical Engineering Harvard University
Country	USA

Short Biography

Donhee Ham is Gordon McKay Professor of Applied Physics and EE at Harvard University, where he has been since 2002. Ham earned a B.S. degree in physics from Seoul National University and a Ph. D. degree in in EE at Caltech. His research interests include nano-bio interface, low-D/quantum materials/devices, NMR biotechnology, and integrated circuit design.